

CALVIN COOLIDGE FOUND DEAD

TODAY

Unpleasant Crime.
Topsy-Turvy Russia.
Hard to Pronounce.

By ARTHUR BRISANE.
(Copyright 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SOME MODERN bandits seem to deserve the kindness that meets them in some jails, or the tender solicitude that sometimes supervises their punishment.

Consider the gang of five who held up 35 patrons of a Brooklyn resort Tuesday morning. While the 35, unresisting, stood against the wall and were robbed of $1,000 in money and jewelry, the criminals abused them with obscene and insulting language. When the job was finished one said:

"Let's plug them, anyway, just for luck."

And then one of the gang fired a shotgun at random into the helpless and unresisting crowd, wounding three.

To reform such gentlemen with kindness would seem difficult.

THE LAND that our "best minds" describe as "half mad, topsy-turvy Russia" does things that seem strange to "best minds."

Tuesday the Soviet court sentenced to death by shooting three of the most important officials of the Communist party. They will be dead when you read this probably. They didn't commit murder, but were "guilty of treason" in connection with grain production and distribution. In other words, they made it hard for the poor to get bread, difficult for the country to prosper.

Those queer people do not execute ordinary murderers. They put them in jail.

They execute you if you engage in grain speculation or sabotage, which makes bread scarce, more expensive.

Possibly the angels also are "topsy-turvy" and agree with the Russian government that to deprive millions, including women and children, of bread is as serious a crime as depriving one individual of his life.

Grand Duke Cyril of Russia dreams, sees visions and expects to sit on the Romanoff throne some day. He says, "The national conscience is gaining strength in Russia," and, solemnly, "Russia's soldiers, I address you; then call on Russia's army and navy to bring back the cars. The gentleman doesn't know the Russian army and navy."

If a czar comes back, which is probable, it will not be one of the old type, but rather something new, like Napoleon, who took charge of France after the French revolution.

Napoleon's task would have been too much of a job for any Bourbon, although the old kings did come back, for a little while, after Napoleon had left the French thoroughly tired, first of revolution and then of glory.

SENATOR COSTIGAN, Democrat from Colorado, says there are twelve millions idle now. Governor Lehman says New York state will need help from the government, and it probably will, like many other states. By the time the government finishes "helping," it may need help itself.

Our "little depression," still going on with prosperity just around the corner, is puzzling.

It reminds you of a gentleman dragged to a New York police station on a charge of vagrancy. Such gentlemen must be "booked," their names written down by the police sergeant.

After a couple of attempts the Four Men Escape With $3,000 in Michigan.

By The Associated Press.
KALEVA, Mich., Jan. 5.—Four bandits today shot and killed Ellsworth Billman, cashier of the Kaleva State bank here, and escaped with cash estimated at $3,000.

Three of the robbers dashed into the bank, leaving the fourth at the wheel of their automobile. One man shouted: "Hands up! You know what we want."

He then fired one bullet into Billman's body, killing him instantly. Another shot was fired at W. J. Hanes, a patron, but went wild.

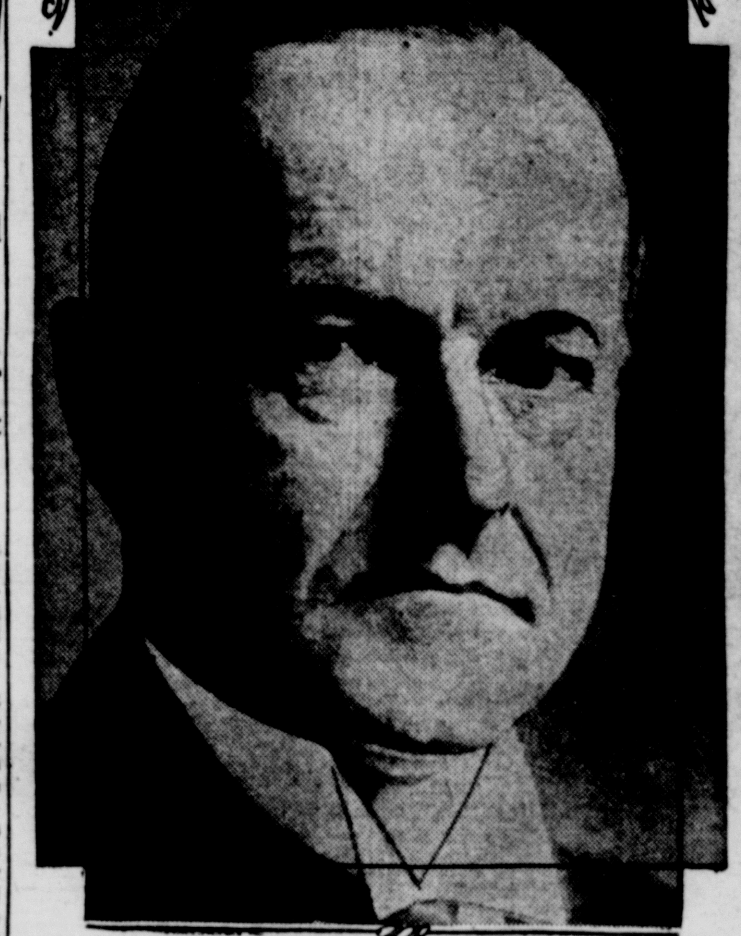

The robbers went behind the counter, scooped up what currency was in sight, and bolted with a warning, "Don't try anything funny."

The robbers fled in a blue motor car and were followed south by a posse of county police and citizens, to Brethren, where they turned east.

Senate Committee Votes Dry Repeal

Measure Provides Protection for Dry States And Legislation Against Return of Saloon.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The senate judiciary sub-committee charged with study of prohibition repeal proposals voted today in favor of a resolution for repeal of the controversial amendment.

Acting with unprecedented speed, the committee headed by Blaine of Wisconsin agreed to report a repeal resolution for submission to state legislatures with protection for dry states and authorization for congress to legislate against return of the saloon.

The vote was in effect 4 to 1, with the sub-committee agreeing unanimously to approve the resolution, but Senator Borah, Idaho Republican and long a dry leader, reserving the right to oppose it on the floor.

Speedy Consideration Assured. Senator Walsh reserved the right to oppose the proposal to submit the proposed amendment to legislatures as called for by both party platforms, and Blaine announced he would oppose the section giving congress power to legislate against return of the saloon.

The resolution will be formally reported to the full judiciary committee at its next meeting, Monday.

Speedy consideration there has been assured by Chairman Norris. The full committee is overwhelmingly in favor of repeal, though there is a wide division of sentiment over the proposal to give congress the right to legislate against return of the saloon.

BANK BANDITS KILL CASHIER

Millions of Dollars Lent by Government Body Recently to Finance Construction Work.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Millions of dollars have been lent by the Reconstruction corporation in the last ten days to provide jobs for several thousand men on great construction projects in various parts of the country.

The prediction of corporation officials made several months ago that January 1 would find many large projects getting under way apparently has been borne out.

The last day of 1932, it was revealed today, found $15,377,000 in the hands of borrowers to pay for bridges, waterworks and other projects. This brought the total of actual disbursements for self-liquidating loans to $146,535,000 and more money will be going out soon.

SEEK CLUES IN MAIL ROBBERY

By The Associated Press.
MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 5.—Postal inspectors sought today to trace meager clues left by bandits who stole three mail pouches containing cash and negotiable securities totaling well above $100,000 from a depot Tuesday night.

W. N. Hughes, chief postal inspector, said a partial checkup of the sacks' contents revealed the cash loss was about $100,000. He said the exact amount of negotiable securities and bond coupons in the loot would not be known for some time.

Federal reserve bank paper was reported to be in the pouches stolen.

MONTOUR ROW OVER DREDGING IS CONTINUED

Pittsburgh Coal Co. Asks Time for Surveying.

CASE AT BEAVER

Pennsylvania Railroad Claims Bed of Stream.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company's new fight against the construction of the Montour Railroad company's 13-mile line from Negley to Smith's Ferry, Pa., to link the Youngstown steel district and the Ohio river was delayed today, when the application for a permanent injunction to restrain the Pittsburgh Coal company from dredging Beaver creek, at the Ohio-Pennsylvania border, was indefinitely postponed by Judge Frank E. Reader at Beaver, Pa.

The hearing was continued by agreement of counsel to permit the coal company, which has established a dock as part of a river-rail terminal near Smith's Ferry, to make surveys of the territory involved.

Claims Creek Bed Ownership. The Pennsylvania, which has suits pending in the Columbiana county common pleas court at Lisbon and federal court at Cleveland against the Montour project, claims ownership of the bed of Beaver creek near its mouth, it was set forth in the Beaver court action against the Pittsburgh Coal company, which controls the Montour.

Dredging operations were started for the purpose of deepening the creek to permit the construction of the river-rail terminal.

The dredging was halted about a week ago, when Judge Reader issued a temporary restraining order. A new date for the hearing will be set, probably within the next week, upon agreement of counsel.

The coal company is represented by Reed & Ewing of Beaver, while Holt, Holt & Richards, also of Beaver, are counsel for the railroad company.

Construction Work Proceeds. The Pennsylvania railroad's attempt to halt the dredging has failed to disrupt the coal company's program of construction of the Montour railroad, work on the grading of the right-of-way being rushed at three points between Smith's Ferry and Negley by employees of three construction companies. The success or failure of the coal company's dream of its own carrier system, to serve as an outlet for its product in the Youngstown district, is said to depend on the outcome of the hearing on the injunction.

Scores Flee Floods In Southern States

By The Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 5.—Scores of families fled today before flood waters that poured through four levee breaks along the St. Francis river in southeast Missouri and northeast Arkansas.

Two gaps in the levee on the Missouri side of the river sent water over approximately 40,000 acres of lowlands. The second of the breaks, three and a half miles north of Kennett, Mo., came without warning, but Missouri national guardsmen assisted marooned families to safety. No lives were lost, but some livestock perished.

Another crevasse developed at the state line, boundary between Arkansas and Missouri. It threatened to overflow a 35 square mile area in Arkansas. Water poured through a fourth opening at Bertig, Ark., covering a wide area of farm land.

HOOVER WARNS CRISIS FACED IN EDUCATION

American Child Must Have Right of Way, He Says.

CAPITAL MEET

"Schools Must Carry On," President Tells Conference.

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A warning that the nation faces "the acute responsibility of providing a right-of-way for the American child" was given today by President Hoover before the opening session of the "citizens' convention on the crisis in education."

In a brief address before the meeting called by him to discuss fitting of educational costs to decreasing tax returns, the President said other problems could be delayed but there could be no setback in the instruction of the nation's children.

Urges Solid Basis of Economy. "Those in charge of the schools," he added, "must be willing to face conditions as they are, to cooperate in discarding all unnecessary expenditure, to analyze all procedures, and to carry forward on a solid basis of economy. But the schools must be carried on."

The conference addressed by Mr. Hoover was a small one, designed as a working meeting to seek a consensus between educational labor and agricultural leaders upon a plan for school economy.

Training Children Stressed. The group, meeting in the National Academy of Science building here, will sit today and tomorrow in an effort to reach this goal. Secretary Wilbur will preside through many of the sessions.

The chief executive placed the training of children as of more importance "than any other process that is carried on by our government."

Retired to His Old Home. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge on the afternoon of the inauguration of Herbert Hoover, his successor, left Washington for their old home in Northampton, Mass., to occupy the same modest house where they started life in 1905, when Mr. Coolidge commenced his public career as city solicitor of that municipality.

As early as the spring of 1927 there was widespread opinion that if Mr. Coolidge wished to be re-elected he had only to indicate it. By his own confession, this view was shared by Mr. Coolidge himself, regardless of the popular tradition that a president must retire after his second term.

In a magazine article published after his retirement, Mr. Coolidge declared he wanted to retire for several reasons which he proceeded to enumerate.

First of all, there was his own health and that of Mrs. Coolidge. "It is hazardous," he wrote, "to attempt what we feel is beyond our strength."

In addition, he considered it impossible for one man to serve successfully in the presidency for more than eight years as a review of the careers of those who had served two full terms had shown him that the latter part of their tenure of office was devoid of constructive accomplishments.

The nation was started when on August 2, 1927, the president issued his famous statement: "I do not choose to run for president in 1932."

It was interpreted variously throughout the country. Many saw in it a sincere wish for retirement, but still a willingness to accept the nomination should an insistent demand arise. Others looked upon it as a final decision that he would not be a candidate for re-election. There were many, too, who regarded it as a shrewd attempt to avoid the third term issue by having himself "drafted for office."

This confusion was clarified by Mr. Coolidge in an address before the Republican National Committee the following December. In six crisp sentences which were added at the last minute to a prepared speech, the president declared that he had "eliminated" himself entirely from the presidential race and advised the party to continue "the serious task of selecting another candidate."

"This decision," he asserted, "must be respected."

Refused Third Term. But Mr. Coolidge did not stop there. When the Republican national convention met at Kansas City in June, 1928, he dispatched his secretary, Everett Sanders, to the session with instructions "to notify several leaders of the state delegations not to vote" for him.

"Had I not done so," he said in his magazine writings, "I am told I should have been nominated."

Mr. Coolidge is on record as having said that he had never formulated in his own mind what his attitude would have been had he been nominated.

Former President Stricken in Home At Northampton, Mass.

Victim of Heart Disease, His Body is Discovered at Noon by Mrs. Coolidge When She Returns From Shopping Tour—Went to Office During Morning But Returned Home About 10.

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Hoover was said by friends today to have been "terribly shocked" when the news of the death of Calvin Coolidge was given him at the luncheon table.

The shock extended immediately to both branches of congress, where preparations were made to adjourn senate and house without delay in respect to the late leader.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 5.—Calvin Coolidge, former President of the United States, was found dead at his home by his wife, this noon.

Death was said to have been due to heart disease. His body was discovered by Mrs. Coolidge when she returned from a shopping tour. Mr. Coolidge was believed to have been dead about 15 minutes when found.

Mr. Coolidge went to his office this morning but returned home accompanied by his secretary, about 10. Mr. Coolidge had complained of indigestion during the last two or three weeks but had not consulted a physician during the last month. He went to his office as usual this morning.

Born in Vermont. Born and reared in the humble surroundings of a Vermont farm, Calvin Coolidge was destined to go by successive steps to the highest and mightiest office of a great nation, to administer its affairs for six years and to terminate his presidential career virtually of his own volition.

To the vice-presidency and to the presidency, he brought a shrewd common sense, a quiet personality in vivid contrast with some of his predecessors, a keen intellect and many homely likes and dislikes retained from his New England boyhood.

Among his supporters he inspired an ardent admiration and from his political opponents he often received the bitterest of denunciations. But there were nevertheless, many in the latter group who valued his friendship and liked to smoke a cigar with him and talk things over.

Reaching the presidency upon the death of Warren G. Harding in 1923, Mr. Coolidge was confronted with problems of rehabilitation arising from the World war and the depression of 1921, and almost at once the country was shaken by the scandals which were revealed in the naval oil leases, the justice department and the office of the custodian of alien property.

With serenity and calmness he rode out these storms and meanwhile instituted a policy of governmental economy and mutual helpfulness in assisting Europe to work out its post-war problems. Such was the success of this program that when he ran for president in 1924 he was returned to office by a popular plurality of 7,000,000, the greatest that had been accorded a candidate for the presidency up to that time.

The manner of his leaving the presidency aroused a national interest comparable with that of his induction into that office by his father in a lamp-lit room of the latter's Vermont farm home.

Attempt Made to Blast Firehouse

By The Associated Press.
DAYTON, Ky., Jan. 5.—An apparent attempt to destroy the Dayton firehouse was frustrated today with discovery of two sticks of dynamite with fuses burning, on the concrete runway in front of the structure.

A passerby pointed the sticks of explosive out to Edgar Kiefer, a former county deputy sheriff. Kiefer promptly crushed out the fuses.

Officials said they could not explain the apparent attempt to destroy the building or how the dynamite came there.

COUPLE FOUND DEAD IN CANTON AFTER WEIRTON WEDDING

BRIDE, MATE SUCCUMB IN HOTEL ROOM

Coroner Says Husband Killed Wife and Himself.

MYSTERY CASE

Sealed Letter Given To Friend Hints Death Plot.

By The Associated Press. CANTON, O., Jan. 5.—A puzzling "farewell note" was scanned today in the hope of finding a motive for the violent deaths of a young Cleveland couple only a few hours after they were married.

Coroner T. C. McQuate said the bride, formerly Miss Beatrice Masterson, 20, apparently was murdered by her husband, Anthony Dicarado Miano, 22, who then killed himself, or else both were victims of a death pact.

Married Tuesday Morning

The couple were married Tuesday morning in Weirton, W. Va. They spent Tuesday night in a Canton hotel, where their bodies were found late yesterday. Both had been shot through the head and they had been dead about 14 hours. Mrs. Miano, the coroner said, probably was killed while asleep.

The young couple was accompanied to the wedding by Martin McCafferty and Eleanor Roth, Cleveland friends, and it was McCafferty who caused discovery of the tragedy. Unable to get an answer from the Mianos' hotel room, he summoned an employee, who entered with him.

Clad in nightclothes, the bride's body was on a bed. Her husband's body on the floor.

Bridegroom Had Little Money

McCafferty then gave a letter to the coroner, which Miano had given him, sealed, the previous night. It was addressed to Miano's brother, Sam, and said in part: "Bee and me were married before we died. I thought it was best for both of us to be dead. . . I want you all to remember that Bee was my wife and that I loved her even more than my own life."

Before the four started to Weirton, McCafferty said, Miano told him he had plenty of money to pay all expenses, but when the bodies were discovered, the coroner said, there was insufficient money in Miano's possession to pay for the hotel rooms.

TEACHERS ARE ENTERTAINED

Thirty-three Persons Attend Dinner at First Church of Christ at Chester.

Teachers of the church school of the First Church of Christ at Chester were entertained recently at a dinner in the church basement. Thirty-three guests were served, after which a program of songs and speaking was held.

Brief talks were given by Misses Olive Halliday, Maud Grimes and Margaret Cox and Chester Sayre, Clyde Barnhart and Lew W. Hannen, all church school teachers. The musical program included a piano duet by Misses Margaret Cox and Marie Mountjoy; a mandolin solo by Miss Ella Johnston, and a vocal solo by Miss Erma Hinds. Rev. A. L. Britton, the pastor, served as toastmaster.

EVANGELISTIC DRIVE LISTED

Pastors of the four Chester churches which will join in a series of six union evangelistic services next week, have outlined an evangelistic program, to extend over a month or more, it was revealed today. The churches are the First Methodist Episcopal, Christian, Presbyterian and United Presbyterian.

This week is being observed among the four churches as "visiting week," pastors and members of each church conducting personal visiting campaigns among their members, preparatory to the union services.

Next week will be devoted to the union services, while the one following that will be "follow-up week," during which the visitations will be continued. On the fourth week, or as soon afterward as possible, each church will conduct a series of individual evangelistic services.

Cleveland Asks Lower Rates For Electricity, Gas, 'Phones

Reduced Street Car Fares Also Urged by Mayor in 25-point Program.

By The Associated Press. CLEVELAND, Jan. 5.—Lower rates for electricity, gas, telephone, and street car service were named as chief objectives of the city administration, last night, in a 25-point municipal program announced before the city council by Mayor Ray T. Miller.

Making a surprise appearance before the council, the mayor read a nine-page statement which embodied his recommended program. The present franchise of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company gives that utility the right to charge five cents a kilowatt hour until July, 1934.

The mayor said, however, he recommended an immediate start of negotiations for a reduction because the city's previous experience with other utilities generally has entailed "years of dispute and litigation" during which time "the people have been deprived of the benefits they were entitled to receive."

Greater participation by the city in the state-wide battle to lower the rates of the Ohio Bell Telephone company and curtailment of expenditures of the Cleveland Railway company as a means of lower fares, shared the top of the list with lights and gas.

The new officers of Middleton Township Farmers' Institute, elected at the annual meeting, today outlined their program for 1933. The officers are: President, Kim Crawford; secretary, Mrs. Lena Williams; treasurer, Lawrence Huston; lady correspondent, Bertha Elder.

The institute held at Clarkson was presided over by Past President H. L. Gaston. Six sessions were held, three on Wednesday and the same number Thursday. One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

WELLSVILLE PLANS CIVIC RELIEF JOBS

Minor Improvements To be Paid From Gas Tax.

next two months with money diverted from the gasoline and automobile tax funds for unemployment relief, it was indicated today.

Service-Safety Director D. D. Duty has been instructed to proceed with the construction of a sanitary sewer in Bolce avenue and a storm sewer across the property of John Caldwell in Buckeye avenue.

ONE BILLION DOLLARS FINE.. 90 MILLION DAYS IMPRISONMENT for neglect of COLDS

EVERY YEAR, the common cold costs America over a billion dollars! Every year, colds imprison people at home — away from work—for more than 90 million days!

These figures are based on estimates of the United States Public Health Service. Nor does this terrific penalty imposed by colds include their misery and annoyance — their trouble and worry — their actual danger to health.

Now Comes Relief!.. Happily — now — a way has been found to lift much of this burden. It comes with the new Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds.

In clinical tests among thousands last winter, Vicks Plan reduced the number and duration of colds by half! — cut the dangers and costs of colds more than half! To millions of homes, the Plan has already brought new freedom from colds.

Better Control of Colds... This unique and remarkable Plan was made possible by the development of the new aid in preventing colds — Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. This new formula is the ideal companion to Vicks VapoRub, the modern way of treating colds. Together with certain simple rules of health, they form Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds — fully explained in each Vicks package. Very briefly, it is this:

To PREVENT Many Colds... When Colds threaten—at that first feeling of stiffness or nasal irritation, snifle or sneeze—Nature's usual warning that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose Drops at once! They soothe irritation and aid Nature's functions in throwing off the infection that threatens. They prevent development of many colds.

To END a Cold Sooner... If a cold has developed or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. At bedtime, apply Vicks VapoRub over throat and chest. Its direct double-action continues through the night. By morning the worst of a cold is usually over. During the day, use the convenient Vicks Nose Drops for added comfort and relief.

For Fewer colds, Less Severe colds, Less Expense... Follow VICKS PLAN for Better CONTROL-OF-COLDS

The Source of Power

The public will not believe all the stories about the wonderful things President-elect Roosevelt and Democratic statesmen plan to do to make things comfortable for each other, but it is willing to cross its fingers and hope for continuance of at least a few months of complete harmony. Its hope may take form in fact.

An incoming president of a different party has the greatest opportunity that can be bestowed under representative democracy to work in apparent harmony with his congress. The lifeblood of political parties is patronage; in the first few months of any administration the president is the heart which pumps that blood to the parts where it will do the most good.

While Mr. Roosevelt holds that advantage—while any president-elect holds it—he can exercise almost dictatorial power over members of his party in congress. They are intermediate points in the assignment of the patronage nourishment. Their reelection may depend on their ability to please the crowd back home. There is no mystery about the harmony that graces the first months of an administration. Congressmen must please the head of the party if they are to be pleased.

The president-elect has indicated an intention to make the most of this disappearing power that he holds. By calling congressional leaders to confer with him this week, he shows a disposition to take charge of the legislative program in the last session of the old congress. As if by magic, the farm legislation which has his approval took on new life in committee a few days ago. There is no question but that Franklin D. Roosevelt intends to make the most of the source of power which will in his control and in his favor while it lasts.

Mrs. Belle Moskowitz

This side of the Alleghenies there aren't so many people who knew Mrs. Belle Moskowitz as there are on the other side—and there aren't thousands there. But in death she gets more attention than she ever wanted or would have accepted in life.

It is no discredit to her achievements that she is identified as an adviser to Alfred E. Smith, instead of by means of the numerous worthy enterprises for which she stood personally responsible. It would have caused her no displeasure to have known that death would bring publicity to her political interest instead of her broad social interests.

Although it has been common knowledge that the jovial and unusually astute Mr. Smith owed much to the advice of Mrs. Moskowitz, his gratitude never was given the exhaustive description that would have made her a national figure. Like many another woman who has gained a vital position in the scheme of politics, she played her part backstage, finding it mutually advantageous.

It is said that Al Smith believed she had the greatest brain of anybody he ever knew, which is a broad statement for a man with a wide acquaintance among the great men of the times. But if he exaggerated slightly, she repaid the compliment by believing in his destiny as the greatest leader of his times. They had a splendid friendship—this grandmother who found time to sit down and talk with a grandfather who lost a presidential election in 1928 and gained a place of leadership he probably couldn't have reached otherwise. There is something in it a little finer than American taste is accustomed to in the political dish.

To Keep Out Barbarians

More hundreds of years ago than it is necessary to remember, generations of Chinese worked under the lash to erect what is said to be the only object on earth that would be visible from Mars—the great wall of China. Its purpose was to keep out barbarians from the north.

For ages the wall has served its purpose, after a fashion. Not always successful, it has represented a handicap, to invaders, nevertheless. Fortunately, perhaps, strong men are not stopped by walls. If they could be penned in so easily, humanity might suffer from the supremacy of the weak.

The Japanese, strong men of the orient today, will not be stopped by a wall. In their plans for getting control of as much of weakened China as they can use to advantage, the great wall represents only another fortification whose destruction would take a certain amount of time and trouble.

At Shanhaiwan, located near the eastern extremity of the great wall on the Gulf of Chihli, which is the inland arm of the Yellow sea, the Japanese didn't have to break down the wall. For the first time in their conquest of Chinese territory, they passed the mighty fortification. They used a gate; they were prepared for worse.

The world is not sure what their plans may be, although they obviously are the same kind that resulted, a year ago, in the conquest of Manchuria. Shanhaiwan, on the seacoast and the railroad, is a gateway to north China. The territory adjacent to it represents the final portion of a vast bouquet handed to Japan by the same fate that caused China to crumble and lose control of its land and people. Korea represents the stems in that bouquet; Manchuria represents the blooms, and Shanhaiwan, south of the great wall built to keep out the barbarians, represents an essential part of the greenery. The "barbarians," efficient fellows who will do the Chinese more good than harm, seized the stems first. They then made sure of the blossoms. They have time now for the rest.

No Pleasure In It

America's passion for leadership in all things must be satisfied in some ironic ways during these times.

These are, for instance, the figures on world trade.

As shown in the annual review of the League of Nations, the United States leads the retreat, with a reduction of 67.5 per cent for the first half of 1932, compared with the first half of 1931.

Germany, Great Britain and France follow, in the order named. France's decline over the same period was 54 per cent, revealing once more that the French have suffered least from the international depression.

The startling fact revealed in the report is the apparent momentum being picked up by the juggernaut of declining trade. In terms of gold, world trade in 1930 was 19 per cent less than in 1929; in 1931 it was 28 per cent less than in 1930, and for the first half of 1932 it was 33 per cent less than for the first half of 1931. Volume fell 7 per cent in 1930; 9 per cent in 1931, and 12 per cent in the first half of 1932. When figures are available for the second half, another increase will be shown.

Social interpretation of this mounting decrease in the volume and value of international trade must point to the most important effect—a constantly decreasing standard of living. Obviously, the slack is not being taken up by production for the domestic market. Theoretically, under the present system, it could not be taken up in that manner, for the reason that there is too much dependence on foreign markets to permit a reversal of the trend without a revival of international trade.

This is by all odds the gravest threat to the welfare of the whole of society that the depression makes. Destruction of living standards established by years of patient endeavor is a terrible sight, but it is being imposed on people of all nations. The League of Nations review states that "the continued disorganization of trade at the same rapid pace as in the last three years will very soon lead to a state where the national income of certain countries will no longer maintain the already low standard of living of their populations."

Heaven Save the Taxmakers.

Taxmaking is one of government's thankless jobs. Few men undertake it for the pure love of doing it, which may be one reason why it is done so badly. Glancing at what lies just ahead and considering the manner in which a severe trial is being approached, most Americans will be moved to ask heaven to help the taxmakers. Earthly power cannot reach them.

It is one of the certainties of current politics that taxes will continue to draw from income an increasing proportion. It is the duty of the taxmakers to do this as tactfully and efficiently as possible, realizing that no matter what they do they are sure to offend someone. Unless they can shut their ears to clamor and fight their way with a minimum of lost effort to a productive objective, they will have failed once more, as they failed in the last session of congress.

There could be nothing more natural under the circumstances than thoughtful consideration of a manufacturer's sales tax, which has been publicly supported by most of the leaders holding key positions in the government. But the fact that sales taxation naturally appears as the quickest and least painful solution to a taxation mess of major proportions does not diminish in the least the strength of those who oppose it. They are defending, in most cases, a principle. Their opponents, the sales taxes, are fighting aggressively for a policy—a practical thing concerning not a set of theories but a set of conditions.

In the taxation situation at present two facts are outstanding. There must be more revenue if the budget is to be balanced, and present sources cannot be depended upon to produce it. For this reason alone beer has been made the issue of the hour. It is capable of producing great revenue. By legalizing it two birds could be killed with one throw. Perhaps it is only what must be expected when congressmen plan deliberately to hit it so hard with taxes that they would spout it for their use. They are desperate.

In beer they have seen a solution to more of their worries than it possibly could bear, even if all potential consumers of legal beer had money to spend on it. How some of them must wish it were possible to show those among their fellow citizens who demand beer and protection against a sales tax in the same breath that a beer tax represents the greatest step that could be taken toward a sales tax, without saying so in as many words. Opponents of sales taxation have fought it on the ground that it transfers the burden of taxation from the wealth of the nation to the masses of the people, which is exactly why the beer tax has so many friends.

It is not strictly because it transfers the burden, but because it promises to provide a means of helping to carry the burden. Along with a long list of nuisance taxes, each representing an approach to the ideal of a universal tax which would not discriminate between equally worthy industries and individuals, it represents a means of collecting revenue after the gilded theory of making wealth pay the major proportion of governmental cost has been exploded in the process of deflation.

Taxmakers all should be practical people, with their feet on the ground. Unfortunately, there has become mixed up with the crowd a number of gentlemen more interested in utilizing an occasion to paralyze an economic system with which they disagree than in facing conditions and helping the system to help the nation get back on its feet. A bitter struggle is imminent; the fire is merry and uncomfortably out of control, but so are the taxmaking fiddlers who must decide what to do about it. And they are not so much to blame as the constituents, who haven't the slightest idea, for the most part, what they want done about it. A generation of congressmen trained to take orders can't be expected to do much when the orders cease or become confused.

THE DEATH OF LITTLE TURTLE

By J. H. Galbraith

The disease known as gout is supposed to be caused by indulgence in rich food and lack of proper exercise. Such a life as the American Indians led of course was not conducive to such a disease. Yet one of the best known of the Indians who lived in this part of the country at the time of the white settlement—Little Turtle—died of gout.

Though Little Turtle was in command of the Indians when they defeated St. Clair, he was the leader of the peace party after the defeat of the Indians at Fallen Timbers. He spent some time in Philadelphia, then the seat of government, dressed in the clothes of civilization, and was interviewed by many educated men on subjects related to his people. Nevertheless, he could not adjust himself to the life of the white man. For some time he remained in Philadelphia and, as he told a white man, he considered remaining there and adopting their customs, but finally gave up and returned to the haunts of his own people.

He died near Fort Wayne, 30 years after the Treaty of Greenville.

Europe Day by Day

By O. O. MCINTYRE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Harlem is greeting the depression with a gallant hi-de-do. No strip of Manhattan has been so badly squeezed in the economic twist, yet there is more surface gaiety than in any other area. Unemployed fill the sidewalks but there's little despair.

On Lenox this evening, a communist gospel was greeted with boos. There is song from upstairs windows and the tap of dancing feet in halls. Instead of jealousy for its most fortunate—such as Bill Robinson, Adelaide Hall and Ethel Waters of the stage—there is acclamation.

If a family's debts become too pressing, presto, a "rent party." Patrons contribute a little change, bring in a fiddler and speed 'em down with flying feet. Bon-tons—Pullman porters who reside in the luxury of Striver's Row and Sugar Hill—have been as badly hit as the rest.

Harlem's hope of sudden riches is expressed in enthusiasms for the number games. Everybody takes a chance. Sometimes for only a few pennies and rarely for more than a dollar. If they win—hot-sighted! But if they don't, tomorrow is another day.

Fanny Hurst's duplex apartment in the artistic colony of West 57th street is one of the popular shrines of a tea-drinking literati. On those auspicious occasions when Miss Hurst sounds the tocsin, the fortunate are certain to see the reigning figures of all branches of art, both the native and visiting foreign. The high-ceilinged living room, filled with a combination of Russian and Italian treasures—ikons, dim-lit altars, mosaic, tapestries, offers a subdued background for rows of flaming red in which Miss Hurst is always seated to receive her guests.

Miss Hurst's workshop is a north lighted room ideally outfitted for the pursuit of the literary genius fatuus. Especially so for the animal lovers, for at her feet are stretched two dignified and silken Pekes, on a divan a blooded snout and blue-eyed cat and, to the left of her typewriter, a spinster case containing a two-pound monkey from far away Brazil.

On second thought, I fear I'd

TODAY I want to tell you about low blood pressure. This affliction is more common than many suspect. In fact, I believe many vague but chronic ailments can be traced to neglect of low blood pressure.

Sufferers from low blood pressure fatigue easily. They have no "pep." They complain of digestive disturbances and in general are below par. Low blood pressure rarely terminates in a fatal disease.

Doctors are often asked what really is the normal blood pressure. This is difficult to answer in any satisfactory manner, because there is a wide range within which the blood pressure may be called normal. In general, it can be said that between the ages of 18 and 40, the blood pressure is assumed to be normal when it stands at about 120.

It varies in individuals, being higher in males than females. It is lower in warm countries as compared to that found in cold countries. As we grow older, certain changes occur in the walls of the blood vessels and the blood pressure rises.

Often Traced to Infection
A pressure below a hundred is considered low. I know many persons who have never had a blood pressure above 90 and yet have appeared to enjoy perfect health. Persistent low blood pressure accompanied by certain symptoms, requires careful investigation. Low pressure is often traced to forego a monkey in such proximity. The one I so briefly owned stopped suddenly several times a day in his antics to chomp a piping threnody which always struck me as a despairing lament over captivity. Not even the lonely coyote sounds such longing.

It is probable New York has had its last rodeo. If exhibitions were merely fancy riding, it is not likely protests would avail. But even cowboys admit bucking bronchos are usually tweaked into bucking by somewhat painful cinch straps. Loosen these straps and the snorting bronk becomes docile. Often, too, at the rodeo, a strangling, having little calf in its sudden fall, when roped, suffers a broken leg and sometimes a neck. Steers have had horns broken and there are other phases to stir animal lovers to action. Chicago has an anti-rodeo league and one is now being formed in the metropolis.

Harry L. Mencken is deservedly bespoken as a grammarian and literary purist. But I notice such purists are often hoist by their own petard. The bad boy of Baltimore recently wrote of "mental telepathy." I may be wrong and this chair is too comfortable to volplane to a dictionary. Yet I have a hunch telepathy refers solely to thought transference. And placing "mental" before it is what the Greek professors or someone called tautology. It is like Roy Howard's cubhood headline "Petite Little Dancer."

Morris Gest, fuzzy Fedora, bow tie and all, is in circulation again, following an illness and the bereavement of his wife, Reina. She is the daughter of David Belasco. Gest is the last of the theatrical blunderbusses, daring, spectacular and often effective. His touch is needed.

Experienced dancers are frequent patrons of the flood of tap dance studios. Queenie Smith and Marilyn Miller go to them to limber up. Also Jack Haley, Benny Rubin and others.

ONCE OVER

BY J. J. MUNDY.

THOSE "POOR RELATIONS."
Now that your income has been reduced to the point where you need some assistance, are you appealing to those who in the past were considered by you as your "poor relations?"

You paid little attention to them in your prosperous days. You could not imagine that you would ever need them.

What could they, in their humble position, do to help you?

Now you are surprised at their lack of response to your advances. You feel that because of your past position they should be glad to entertain you in their homes, so humble in comparison to what you once had.

Perhaps they do not share your view point in this matter.

Very sure are they that it is a matter of expediency, not love, that prompts you to come to them at this time.

If you had shown them as much attention in your affluent years as you show now they might be anxious to give all the help that is in their power to give.

Now they feel that they owe you nothing through relationship or otherwise and you cannot honestly blame them.

If you gained independence again you would not then care any more for them than you did in the past.

Rhyme a Day

BY ALINE MICHAELIS.

Revelations

How do I know the things in her heart,
The deep, hidden feelings no words can impart?
How can I tell where her happy thoughts run
When she sits by my side at the setting of sun?
How can I fathom her dreams and desires,
The urge of her spirit, her soul's secret fires?

There are words left unsaid, though they hunger for speech;
But still, through the silence, strange forces can reach
And they whisper, revealing the beauty and bloom
That glow without change in her life's inmost room!

So veiled are the symbols, so swift and so small,
Almost I might fancy them nothing at all,
A light in her eyes, which but fleetingly burns,
A smile on her lips that no stranger discerns;
Yet I know I have seen all of her being unclose
In her hands as they hover, caressing a rose!

Choice

I'd rather see your eyes aglow
With faith and love and gladness,
As once I saw them when the world
Was gay with April madness,
I'd rather see your smiling eyes,
So brave, clear and tender
Than all the gems of all the kings,
Ablaze in regal splendor!

I'd rather hear the voice of you
In happy laughter flowing,
As when I heard it on a day
When April winds were blowing,
I'd rather hear your lifting voice
In madcap laughter ringing
Than cherubim and seraphim
And all the angels singing!

The Reviewing Stand

By TOM T. JONES.

FORTY-ONE paintings, grouped together invitingly, constitute the exhibition of David G. Blythe works which, during the remainder of this month, will be shown by the department of fine arts of the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh. Data regarding them has been preserved in a catalog that has been printed by those in charge of the departure. The paintings in every instance will have added worth by reason of their having been shown to the many people viewing them from all sections of the Tri-State territory.

Already a number of East Liverpool residents have journeyed to Pittsburgh in order to witness the exhibition. Among those who recently made the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Fisher of Lincoln highway. Portraits of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fish, in separate frames constitute a part of the East Liverpool painting that are included in the number thus shown. It is likely that both of them will make a second visit to the exhibition before it closes on January 31.

The catalog enumerating the paintings in this portion of the institution's exhibit consists of 12 pages. The list noted in it is preceded by a foreword in which David G. Blythe, the painter, is described as a craftsman of "pre-Civil War times, known in his day as the 'Hogarth of America.'" It relates that he was born on May 9, 1815 in East Liverpool and that he was the son of John and Susan G. Blythe who settled in the Pottery City following their arrival in America from Perth, Scotland, their former home.

Reference is made to the fact that he was a "quiet, bookish, rather eccentric youth, who, without training was able to dash off a striking likeness of an individual either at sight or memory." It was noted that he went to Pittsburgh, at 15 where he learned the trade of wood-carving, with the firm of Joseph Woodwell. From this apprenticeship he was enabled to carve the Lafayette statue which yet is attached to the Fayette county courthouse at Uniontown, Pa.

HOW he went to sea for a time after learning his trade in Pittsburgh is noted although there is not much history remaining now of this period in his interesting life. From 1840 to about 1845 he painted in East Liverpool. Then it was that many of the paintings now on exhibition were perhaps done although he made others in succeeding years when at intervals he came back to his native town. From 1853 to 1855 he painted those that have been gathered up from Pittsburgh and immediate locality.

It is also declared in the catalog that his young bride with whom he was privileged to live for about a year was Miss Julia Keffer of Uniontown, Pa., before her marriage to him. She succumbed to an attack of typhoid fever which left him in a disheartened condition from which it is believed he never fully recovered. Her passing is said to have had a marked effect upon his later life.

It is recorded that he was located in Pittsburgh in 1856 and 1857, those crucial years in which occurred events that slowly were bringing the North and South into grips with each other. He at intervals maintained a studio at 66 Third avenue. It was while he was for an interim with the Thirteenth Pennsylvania regiment of the federal army that he made many sketches of army life. He was a camp follower for the purpose of making these sketches and was not an enlisted man.

He is known also to have painted a panorama of the National pile while he was a resident of Uniontown, Pa. This was said to have been a canvas six or eight feet in height and several hundred feet long. He also is said to have completed a panorama of the battle of Gettysburg and was planning the painting of many of the important events and battles of the Civil war when the end came to him on May 15, 1865.

In the personal description given of this gifted East Liverpool painter it is noted that his eyebrows were heavy and that his red hair and beard were usually unkempt. It is declared that he was a stern-looking man, but that his countenance lighted up pleasingly when he engaged in animated conversation.

PERSONS visiting the exhibition read in the catalog that his personal adornment consisted of the wearing of a long-sleeved coat, very wide pants, large thick-soled boots and that he affected the very high hat of the gentlemen of his day.

Visitors are given to understand in the description of Mr. Blythe that he also was of literary turn of mind. His poems have been preserved in newspapers and albums. He wrote under the signature, "Boots." He was held a man of fine feeling and understanding although he was given to great independence and fearless, outspoken declaration upon occasions.

Despite his declared eccentricity in many departures he was said also to be exceedingly companionable and sociable. He held a commendable position among his fellow artists in Pittsburgh and was given a hearty welcome when in Civil war camps. He stands out by reason of the fact that he seemingly painted because it was his nature to do so. The impulse to do so was inherent in him. He did not follow painting as a livelihood. As is well known he was at times a man without great personal means.

"These are all signs that Pittsburgh in its pre-Civil war days entertained a genius although not unaware, as indicated by the regard in which he was held in the city of his adoption, and by the care with which even his slightest sketches have been preserved and handed down as precious heritages," the catalog notes.

It is noted in concluded regarding him that following his passing he was initially buried in the old Fifth street cemetery here and later when this was abandoned his remains were taken to Spring Grove cemetery, there to lie "on the spot which was originally the 'God's Acre' of the Blythe farm."

It is thus additionally in this connection that he has for many years lain in ground over which he doubtless often trod as a lad for it is almost within sight of his birthplace, the latter being a bit to the north of the cemetery.

At intervals preceding and following the opening of this exhibition of the David G. Blythe paintings have come communications from those connected with the department of fine arts of the Carnegie Institute to H. B. Barth, secretary of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, who so markedly assisted them in gathering up and discovering whereabouts the numerous Blythe paintings that exist. Due acknowledgement to all giving aid in the preparation of this exhibition is made in the catalog prepared by the officials of the department.

The paintings that are included in the exhibition are numbered. The first of these is "David G. Blythe and Isaac Brooms," lent by J. J. Gillispie company of Pittsburgh. The next is "Portrait of the Artist," pencil sketch, lent by Heber H. Blythe of East Liverpool. Then follow those of the parents of Mr. Blythe.

The next is "The Cobbler's Shop," lent by Oliver Ormsby Page. There follows two East Liverpool contributions, loaned by Miss Mary G. Irwin of Thompson avenue, portrait of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coburn, her grandparents, which were painted in 1854. The next two are paintings taken from the Duguesne club of Pittsburgh, "Corn Fed" and "Dry Goods and Notions."

That noted as No. 10 is "Fanny," lent by Mrs. Devern Coburn of East Liverpool. Then is discerned "The Fiddler," a painting loaned by the Misses McGirr and "The Cracker," another of the Duguesne club contributions to the exhibition. The next two are those previously noted of the parents of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Fisher of this city.

The Misses McGirr have two other paintings on exhibition, "Good Times" and "Hard Times." There are then noted two other East Liverpool paintings, "Portrait of George S. Harker," loaned by H. N. Harker and "Harvesting" by H. H. Blythe. There is then another Duguesne-owned painting, "The Hunter" and "Interior," loaned by the Wanders brothers of Pittsburgh.

GEORGE L. HAILMAN, doubtless of Pittsburgh, has contributed the painting, "January Bills." Then follows one which was not initially procured when representatives of the institution visited East Liverpool. It is the "Portrait of Isaac Watts Knowles" which was procured for the exhibit by Edwin M. Knowles of Newell, his son. Isaac Watts Knowles was one of the outstanding early manufacturers of ware in East Liverpool and the founder of the widely known firm of Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery of East Liverpool which for many years was the largest plant in this locality and perhaps in America.

Another of the Blythe paintings shown is "Lawyer's Dream," lent by Charles A. Finley. There are then noted "Portrait of Cynthia Logan, 1842," lent by H. B. Barth and "Man in Field" by Mr. Blythe here. "Man Putting on Boots," lent by the Henry R. Scully estate and "Man Putting on Socks" by Wanders Brothers reflect pertinent customs of the artist's day.

"Newsboys" by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Ricketson Jr.; "Postoffice" by James D. Hailman; "Prospecting" and "Recruits Wanted" by William Howard Nimick; "The Runaway," "Stage Coach," "Story of the Battle," "Town Crier" and "The Urelin" are other Duguesne club paintings shown. Then there are also "Sleigh Ride" and "Walt Boy," lent by H. N. Harker here. "The Washerwoman" by the Misses McGirr and finally the list is concluded by "Portrait of Jeremiah G. Webber and Her Son" which was loaned by Joseph S. Webber Sr. of East Liverpool. Incidentally Mr. Webber, now past 90, is the child in his mother's arms which Mr. Blythe painted upon the canvas shown upon a long-day array.

It is a bit arresting that perhaps the youngest portrait painted is that of this child who now survives at this advanced age to know of the interest taken in the painting which he has beheld his entire long life-time.

That numbered No. 36 is the painting of "Portrait of John C. Thompson" and loaned by him. It was inspected by the representatives of the department of fine arts in Mr. Thompson's home in Park boulevard. The contribution of this painting gives to the exhibition the likeness of another local resident who is yet living.

The exhibition has arrested the attention of all of the papers of Pittsburgh. All of them have special writers to comment upon the painting collection shown. All of them have also reproduced some of these paintings in connection with these commendatory articles. In addition, it is said, there will be other, even more critical, contributions given to certain magazines at a later time.

There is a general agreement that the work of Mr. Blythe stamps him as a genius, one who stood out as an unusual artist by reason of the fact that he painted without any training. And it is notable also that those writing of him in Pittsburgh claim that city as his adopted home.

THE THEATER

HAYES AND NOVARRO WIN PLAUDITS IN CHINATOWN DRAMA

Romance Marks Ceramic's "Son-Daughter" Feature.

Helen Hayes and Ramon Novarro, as Chinese lovers in a terrific drama of Chinatown, are the attractions at the Ceramic theater where "The Son-Daughter," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of the David Belasco stage play, opened Wednesday.

It is a dramatic romance of Chinese intrigue and plots of backbiting and tongs, the struggle of revolutionists against royalists, and the central episode is that of the Chinese girl who sells herself in the marriage auction to aid her countrymen.

Miss Hayes, as Lien Wha, the auctioned bride, enacts one of the most dramatic roles in her career, and does it with her usual brilliance and effectiveness. Novarro, as the lover who extricates her from the astounding plot, has another great role. He plays a romantic Chinese prince who fights for the revolution, and, in the smashing climax of the story, rises to heights that recall his work in "Ben-Hur."

An elaborate cast appears. Lewis Stone is the stern but loving Chinese father, and Warner Oland the sinister Fan Sha, highbinder and gambler. Ralph Morgan appears as the envoy of the Chinese emperor.

Other brilliant figures in the blend of pomp and spectacle, drama and romance, are Louise Closser Helt, imitable as the wise Chinese servant, and H. B. Warner as the revolutionist leader.—H. J. K.

DOUBLE PROGRAM OF FILM FEATURES ON BILL AT AMERICAN

"The Last Mile" and "Avenging Seas" Offered.

An attractive double program, featuring "The Last Mile," with Howard Phillips and Preston Foster, and "Avenging Seas," closes a two-day engagement tonight at the American theater. "The Last Mile" describes men in the death house of a penitentiary and their actions just before the end. The story of "Avenging Seas," which was received by critics and public with wide acclaim, tells of a man and wife stationed in India on government post. The wife returns to her home for a visit and when she rejoins her husband, it is to learn that he has fallen a victim to the wiles of a beautiful native girl.

Later, after forgiving him, she discovers the man compromised a second time and renounces him. They are aboard ship bound for home. There is a collision and the vessel sinks. The wife is taken aboard a life boat, believing her husband dead. On the contrary, he is rescued by another boat. From that point on, the story develops swiftly to a stupendous climax which itself is a tribute to the courage and fortitude of humanity as a whole.

Anne Grey has the role of the wife. George Barraud, another distinguished London star, appears as the husband. Others in the cast are Benita Hume, Cyril Raymond, Alfred Drayton, Alf Goddard, Daphne Courtenay and Irene Russell, all well known stage and screen players.—R. S. E.

STATE.

The engrossing story of three girls, starting as classmates in the same public school, and the varying fortunes that cause their paths through life to inter cut ten years later, is told in a fascinating manner in First National's production, "Three On A Match," featuring Joan Blondell, Warren William, Ann Dvorak and Bette Davis which opens today at the State theater for a three day engagement.

Three more widely differing girls that the trio portrayed in this vivid drama would be hard to imagine. One is the class beauty, a girl of wealth and position. A second is the honor girl of her class. The third is the school 'bad girl,' tomboy and mischief maker.

When they meet again, the class beauty is the spoiled wife of a wealthy lawyer who adores her. The student has become a successful secretary. The tomboy, after a checkered career that has taken her through a reform school, is a vivid creature of Broadway's night life.

How the destinies of the three work themselves out is the drama that "Three On A Match" unfolds. The unusually large cast includes Lyle Talbot, Hale Hamilton, Grant Mitchell, Humphrey Bogart, John Marsden, Buster Phelps, Frankie Darro, Dawn O'Day and Clara Blandick.

The next few weeks will be given over to the closing work of the first semester.

SCHOOLS RESUME IN WELLSVILLE

The Wellsville public schools reopened Wednesday after the Christmas vacation with good attendance in the high school and elementary buildings. There were only two absentees in the former, while the number missing in the grade rooms was not above the ordinary average.

The next few weeks will be given over to the closing work of the first semester.

Dale Allison and James Stewart, eighth grade students, will compose the "School Boy" patrol of the Chester Junior High school during January. Principal Lew W. Hannen said today. They were appointed to succeed Estal Brown and Harry Floyd, who served during December.

The boys are stationed at the intersection of Third street and Indiana avenue 9 to 9:40 p. m. and 12:55 to 1:15 p. m. each school day to regulate traffic and protect the children en route to school. No accidents have been reported since the patrol was organized last fall, Hannen said today.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Stomach ailments—gas, indigestion, heartburn, pain in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get as the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it rots your food into your system the most important digestive tube necessary for assimilating nutrients, regulating digestion and eliminating the intestinal tract. If this tube does not flow freely, then your food sour, putrefies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From Germany's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive tube flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Mergalium Oxide, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxidals after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll get out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Mergalium Oxide today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

DOUBLE PROGRAM OF FILM FEATURES ON BILL AT AMERICAN

"The Last Mile" and "Avenging Seas" Offered.

An attractive double program, featuring "The Last Mile," with Howard Phillips and Preston Foster, and "Avenging Seas," closes a two-day engagement tonight at the American theater. "The Last Mile" describes men in the death house of a penitentiary and their actions just before the end. The story of "Avenging Seas," which was received by critics and public with wide acclaim, tells of a man and wife stationed in India on government post. The wife returns to her home for a visit and when she rejoins her husband, it is to learn that he has fallen a victim to the wiles of a beautiful native girl.

Later, after forgiving him, she discovers the man compromised a second time and renounces him. They are aboard ship bound for home. There is a collision and the vessel sinks. The wife is taken aboard a life boat, believing her husband dead. On the contrary, he is rescued by another boat. From that point on, the story develops swiftly to a stupendous climax which itself is a tribute to the courage and fortitude of humanity as a whole.

Anne Grey has the role of the wife. George Barraud, another distinguished London star, appears as the husband. Others in the cast are Benita Hume, Cyril Raymond, Alfred Drayton, Alf Goddard, Daphne Courtenay and Irene Russell, all well known stage and screen players.—R. S. E.

STATE.

The engrossing story of three girls, starting as classmates in the same public school, and the varying fortunes that cause their paths through life to inter cut ten years later, is told in a fascinating manner in First National's production, "Three On A Match," featuring Joan Blondell, Warren William, Ann Dvorak and Bette Davis which opens today at the State theater for a three day engagement.

Three more widely differing girls that the trio portrayed in this vivid drama would be hard to imagine. One is the class beauty, a girl of wealth and position. A second is the honor girl of her class. The third is the school 'bad girl,' tomboy and mischief maker.

When they meet again, the class beauty is the spoiled wife of a wealthy lawyer who adores her. The student has become a successful secretary. The tomboy, after a checkered career that has taken her through a reform school, is a vivid creature of Broadway's night life.

How the destinies of the three work themselves out is the drama that "Three On A Match" unfolds. The unusually large cast includes Lyle Talbot, Hale Hamilton, Grant Mitchell, Humphrey Bogart, John Marsden, Buster Phelps, Frankie Darro, Dawn O'Day and Clara Blandick.

The next few weeks will be given over to the closing work of the first semester.

A PATH TO PARADISE

by Coningsby DAWSON

SYNOPSIS: With a melodramatic gesture, Santa's former husband Dicky kidnaps her, and holding her by force in a taxi, attempts to make love to her. Santa wishes Clive, her husband, had done more than merely throw Dicky out of their apartment the night before, when his presence had become too obnoxious. But now Santa must escape—and she doesn't quite know how to do it.

Chapter 48
SANTA'S NEW PROBLEM
DICKY, darling, do look where we are! She hurried herself against him.
"Darling! That sounds more fond." He turned to follow her pointing. "The Bronx Zoo. What of it?"
"I'd adore to visit it. Never have."

Catching the spirit of her excitement, he tapped on the pane. Jumping out, he settled the fare, then helped her to alight. As they walked toward the entrance, he tucked her arm through his possessively.
"I must hand it to you, Santa, when your little think-box works, it works so quickly."

Close to the gates, she felt safe to reveal her mind.
"I'm not your wife. When I was, you were as crooked as a dog's hind leg. You still are."

Withdrawing her arm swiftly, she darted from him. Realizing that he was following, she sought refuge with a traffic cop.

"Don't arrest him. We were once friends. Only tell him to stop annoying me."

The traffic cop, suddenly promoted to knight-errant, viewed Dicky's pearl-grey spats and shiny cane with infinite disgust.

"Beat it. Shake a leg."

Dicky raised his hat to his former wife.

"So long, darling. I'll visit the monkey-house. Studying its inmates may teach me something more about you."

"I'll run him in, if you say so," the officer suggested.

Tears of gratitude flooded her eyes.

"I can't let you. There are reasons."

"The big hunk of cheese!" Her protector scowled after the leisurely retreating figure. His gaze returned to her. "You shouldn't look so sweet, girle. It isn't all his fault."

Santa's problem, as she journeyed homeward, was how much she could tell Clive without prejudicing herself. She planned an expurgated edition of her impromptu kidnapping. At the very start she was stumped. The truth was too incredible—that she had stepped into the one taxi in New York in which the man whom she ought to avoid was seated.

Arrived back at the apartment, she drove to compose herself and was still undecided as to how much to divulge, when she heard the door opening and recognized her husband's footstep.
"Hello, darling!" he greeted her from the hall; then entered gallant and boyish.

Stop That Cough

What do you care what it tastes like or smells like, so long as it does the work. So long as it rids you of that racking, stubborn cough?

Broncholine Emulsion is a man-size cough medicine, and does a man-size job. A tight, racking cough that has hung on and hung on is just the kind it likes to go after.

WOMAN LOST 20 POUNDS IN 4 WEEKS

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just four weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and further more I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know. For your health's sake, ask for and get Kruschen at Herche's 2 Drug Stores or any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.—Adv.

LAKE VESSEL WINS OVER ICE

Freighter is Safe at Cleveland; Two of Crew Ill.

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 5.—After a three-day battle with thick ice on Lake Erie, the freighter F. B. Squire was safe in port here today, her bow bearing marks of the struggle, and two of her crew ill of influenza.

The freighter slipped into harbor late yesterday, bringing to an end fears expressed ashore for her safety. After leaving Buffalo Sunday, the boat was unheard from until Capt. William Anderson brought her into Cleveland.

In the interim, port authorities at Toledo and Detroit had maintained a watch for arrival of the vessel, but the ice was too thick to make the west end of the lake. The Squire will lay over for the rest of the winter, in Cleveland, the captain said.

RAMSAY SEES KEEN GOLF FIGHTS IN 1933

Youthful College Football Finds Pro Game An Important Rival

Amateurs Watched

Somerville Expected To Have Tough Time This Year.

By HERBERT H. RAMSAY, President, United States Golf Association.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Competition of the game of golf appears to be getting keener each year and 1933, on the basis of the unusually interesting year we have just closed, is going to show some sensational performances.

We have, in particular, a group of young amateur players who will make a determined attempt to bring back the title which that fine sportsman, Ross Somerville, took to Canada last season for the first time.

U. S. Pros To England. In international affairs, a team of professional golfers from this country will meet the British team for the Ryder cup, and likely most, if not all of the members of that team will stay in England to compete in the open championship there.

The open championship of the United States will be held in June at the North Shore Golf club, Glen View, Illinois; the amateur championship will be held at the Exmoor Country club, Highland Park, Illinois, and the Public Links championship will be held in the far west for the first time in its history, the venue being East Moreland Municipal course, Portland, Ore.

No Changes Planned. The conditions under which the championships are conducted by the association have not been tested to such an extent that there will likely be no changes in the conditions of the championships or in the program of sectional elimination rounds utilized so successfully in the open championship and the amateur championship.

Last year marked the first in which the 1.62-1.62 golf ball became official for play, and it is fair to say that the 1932 golf ball has been enthusiastically received throughout the United States. The depression everywhere has affected golf. Players, professional inspectors, manufacturers of implements and equipment, have all suffered in common.

Can Play at Low Cost. In addition, many private clubs throughout the United States, through decline of membership and otherwise, have come to the end of their resources, followed by foreclosures and liquidation. It is difficult to see any immediate silver lining to this depressing cloud. The fact is, though, that conditions have demonstrated to many people that it is now possible to play golf on public courses at low cost. Many private clubs have met the situation by converting their courses into public or semi-private courses as a temporary measure. Through cycles of prosperity and depression, the game has existed and expanded. It will continue to do so.

That Old Diamond Lure!

GROH AND WAGNER DREAM OF RETURNS

Heinie Groh has admitted a longing to return to baseball as a manager. Hans Wagner recently sought the job of managing the Cincinnati Reds.

By The Associated Press. CINCINNATI, O.—Players who were stars in baseball's good old days would like to make comebacks as managers. Hans ("Honus") Wagner, now running a sporting goods store in Pittsburgh, with "Pie" Traynor as a partner, was one of those who sought the job of managing the Cincinnati Reds. But Donie Bush, of a younger school, got the job. Now Heinie Groh, called by some of the game's greatest third basemen, confesses he would like the idea too. Like Wagner, Groh is unable to get away from the lure of the sport. Like Wagner, he has business interests that make him independent of a manager's uniform. In his case the business is a bowling alley and apartment house in Rochester, his old home town. He told of his longing while on a holiday visit to Mrs. Groh's parents here. His last job was as manager of the Binghamton club of the New York-Pennsylvania league. Heinie spent year, with the Cincinnati Reds. He had played second base. Shy a good man at third, the Reds switched him over, and he became a star among stars. The deal that brought him to Cincinnati, incidentally, was one of the few in which John McGraw was out-smarted. Joe Tinker did the trick in 1913, during a year's stand as manager of the Reds. Joe shipped Art Fromme to New York in exchange for Groh, Leon Ames and Josh Devore. McGraw had seen Fromme pitch some of the few good games of his career. Impressed, he swapped, but found his expectations fruitless. While Groh became a world beater, Ames proved to be a faithful standby for the Cincinnati pitching staff, and Devore went to the Phillies for $5,000.

Big Improvement is Shown By Potter Cagers in Daily Drills

Locals' Shooting, Ball-handling and Floor Work Bids no Good for Future Foes Of Dixonmen; Face Toronto.

Displaying marked improvement in ball handling, shooting and floor work, Tom Dixon's Potters will present a much different club when they engage Toronto on the local court Saturday night than the Blue and White clad machine that lost to Youngstown Chaney a couple of weeks ago.

Dixon was thoroughly disappointed in his team's work in that tussle and has been drilling the locals hard through the Christmas vacation in preparation for the stiff battles to come. Toronto is not expected to furnish a great deal of opposition for the locals, but next week the Potters must face Stenbo and Salem on successive nights and both teams promise to give the Dixonmen the hardest sort of a tussle.

The loose ball-handling and poor shooting that marked the Potters' defeat at the hands of Chaney was missing as the locals went through their daily drill Wednesday. The boys were zooming in field goals in great shape and tossing the ball around with some idea as to its destination.

Dixon is expected to start Andy Steward and Bill Laughlin at the guards with Cullen at center. Bobby Stewart will probably be at one forward and it looked today as if Jimmy Dotson or Shaw would get the job as his running mate.

Faculty Manager John Decker announced that Eddie Stump, the Wheeling official, who made a big hit with the fans in his handling of the Chaney game, would referee the Toronto fracas. The main battle will get under way around 9 p. m.

JOHNNY PENA MEETS MILLING

By The Associated Press. Arnold's Insurance registered their first victory in the Tri-City Girls' basketball league Wednesday night by burying the Wellsville Selects under a 45 to 10 score in the down-river city. The defeat was the first of the season for the Selects. The losers got only three field goals, two by Price, who took down scoring honors for her team with five points.

Daugherty paced the Arnold's powerful attack with six field goals and a pair of charity tosses for 14 points. Weekly dropped in five fielders for 10 points, while Miller and Dick each caged four double pointers and a free toss for nine counters apiece. Woodward collected the other three points for the winners.

Arnold's took a 13-4 lead in the first quarter and jumped it to 22-7 at half-time. As the clubs went into the fourth quarter the Insurance quintet was out in front, 29 to 8. Tonight on the Wellsville M. E. church gym the Arnold team will take on Chester in an effort to deadlock East Liverpool for the league lead. The lineups:

Steiner Report Is Given

Criticises Schools for Lauding Athletes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—College football was about the only one of the "spectacle" sports that kept pace with the growth of interest in active competition during the "boom" years and now, with gate receipts declining sharply the college sport appears to have found an important rival in the professional game.

While the number of golfers, tennis players, automobile campers, and others who preferred to take their outdoor sport in an active way was growing by leaps and bounds in the years before 1930 and baseball and boxing were suffering, football kept pace, it is shown in the report of the president's research committee on social trends. But, adds Dr. J. F. Steiner, professor of sociology at the University of Washington, who contributed to the report, there is the possibility that "public interest may eventually shift from college to professional football because of the superior skill of the latter."

Remarkable Growth. The report, which covers statistically only the period up through 1930, shows the remarkable growth of football in a 10-year period and the huge investments which went with it.

"According to reports from 135 institutions," the report says, "the seating facilities for football spectators increased from 925,523 in 1920 to 2,307,850 in 1930, a gain of 143 per cent."

"These institutions reported 74 concrete stadia, 55 of which had been built since 1920. Only one of these college stadia in 1920 had a seating capacity of more than 70,000, while there were seven in this class in 1930."

The recent decline in attendance apparently is due to hard times rather than to declining interest, Dr. Steiner explains.

The only other apparent danger to the popularity of the college sport which, the report estimates, drew a total attendance of approximately 10,300,000 in 1930 with estimated receipts of not less than $1,500,000, is the growth of the professional game.

Cites Eastern Schools. "The game itself," it says, "has those combative elements which make it a thrilling spectacle, entirely apart from the colorful features provided by rival student bodies. Evidence of this can be seen in the growing popularity of professional football in the east and middle west during the past few years."

If the professional game should replace the colleges in public interest, Dr. Steiner's report concludes, "college football may follow college baseball and decline as a public spectacle, becoming a game of no more than local interest."

"That grave ills have resulted from the stress and struggle to win football championships there can be no doubt. A few of the leading colleges and universities have already attempted to reorganize their athletics more in accord with general student welfare and educational ideals."

Grimes Wrestlers Have to Stop Set For Big Year

General Clinin Issues Final Edict to Matmen to Quit "Monkey Business."

By The Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—No more roughhouse or burlesque wrestling goes in Chicago.

No longer will the big, hairy chested, mammoths of the mat be allowed to toss each other out of the ring, exchange bites, slug each other, and indulge in other monkey business to the huge delight of the spectators.

In the future wrestlers must wrestle, or be fined, suspended, or both. General John V. Clinin, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic commission made known his stand today, after one of the wrestling boys, Lou Plummer, of South Bend, Ind., took a few wallops at the referee in a recent match. Plummer was ordered to appear before the commission next Monday for discipline.

General Clinin said that present wrestling bouts were nothing more than "horse play"; that they were not contests and nothing more than exhibitions of tossing each other around—a burlesque on the Roman arena.

"I am sick and tired of this monkey business," General Clinin said. "Wrestlers must wrestle or get out. These fellows go through the same act all over the country. In some places the referees are part of the act, but in Illinois, they are representatives of the state, and must uphold the dignity."

Wrestlers have evolved new stunts to thrill the spectators. One of the most spectacular feats is for a contestant to grab his opponent, hold him high over his head and then walk to the edge of the ring, and toss him out, allowing him to fall into the laps of the ring-siders. Sometime ago the commission ordered a five foot space cleared around the ring, to protect the newspapermen and telegraphers from wrestlers when they came tumbling or falling out of the ring.

Grimes described that "bubbling over" feeling while in St. Louis yesterday, after driving in from his farm near New Haven, Mo. He reported he had gained 15 pounds since the operation, and now weighs 194.

"Haven't felt so good for years," the veteran said. "Guess I put off that operation longer than I should."

"But I'm a new man now, jump out of bed every morning at 7:30, and turn in every evening at 7:30. Don't feel any weakness at all. I've had absolute rest since the operation, but I can start working around the farm now, and I expect to be well along toward conditioning when I start spring training."

As to his added avoirdupois, Grimes said: "I can pack all that weight and be strong."

MAN HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatic pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengé (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "dead" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengé by name called "Ben-Gay" in English. There are many analgesic baumes, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

va, O., man whose blood-stained suit aroused authorities' suspicions, was brought here today for questioning by detectives investigating the murder of Mrs. Ruth Steese, young welfare worker.

The man explained the suit was stained when he cut himself on a saw last week. Cleveland police were notified yesterday when he left the suit at a Geneva dry cleaning shop.

Although his appearance fails to correspond with that of the unidentified man who police believe did the killing, the authorities said the Geneva man would be held until they are able to check his movements the day of the crime.

The supposed slayer was observed at the scene of the crime, by a farmer youth, only a few minutes after Mrs. Steese was killed. She had been kidnapped in an East Side business section, taken in an automobile to an outlying road 14 miles away, and had been blindfolded, bound, robbed, and then shot twice through the head.

Several suspects have been arrested, and released.

EAST PALESTINE

City council met in regular session Wednesday night in the city hall. There were 25 citizens present, 11 of whom are city employees.

Solicitor Springer read a letter from the East Ohio Gas company accepting the ordinance on the new light rates passed recently by council. This also provides for an extension of two years on the franchise.

The legislative committee held a meeting to consider the rates of the Ohio Bell Telephone company. They instructed the clerk to write the telephone company and ask them to send a representative to meet with council regarding the police light and the installation of a fire alarm system.

J. M. Cooley moved that Service Director Van Fossan prepare an agreement to continue the reduction of wages given the city employees last July. No definite time limit was set for this reduction which amounts to about 10 percent. The president asked for remarks from the city employees present but none were offered. This motion carried unanimously.

N. S. Nicely reported that the sewer committee had met and approved plans for improvement of the disposal of sewage and were satisfied to go ahead with this improvement.

The following report for December given by Mayor Shasteen was approved: Fines, $12, and licenses, $4.

John Peterson suggested that the Parent Teacher association and board of relief give monthly reports and also the township trustees as there are 62 township children being fed in the cafeteria. This was left for further consideration.

J. M. Cooley stated that East Rebecca street should be made a one-way street, all traffic to travel east to avoid confusion and accidents at the intersection. He also asked that all milk trucks be kept from stopping on the left side of the street. These matters are being referred to the street committee and Safety-Service Director E. J. Van Fossan.

COLUMBIANA

A gift exchange was a feature with Mrs. Ellsworth Miller acting as Santa Claus. Each member brought a pound of food, which was placed in baskets and given to the needy. Mesdames Wick Fry, Clarence Smith and Raymond Dieffenbacher had charge of the entertainment and Mrs. Roy Weaver, Mrs. John Crawford, Miss Elsie Louise Deemer and Miss Jean Calvin were the hostesses. Twenty-five members answered roll call by giving a Christmas Bible verse.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' society of the Lutheran church was held Wednesday. Miss Jean Calvin spent the week-end with East Palestine relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Wick Fry spent New Year's Day with the former's brother and family of Canton.

EAST END NEWS

END OAKLAND SEWER WORK

St. George Street, Ohio Avenue Job Next.

Extension of an eight-inch sanitary sewer, which has been under construction in Fayette alley, Oakland, for about three weeks, was completed Wednesday by city welfare employees under the supervision of Service-Safety Director John W. Moore and City Engineer George Bloomgren. Work on the project was delayed owing to adverse weather conditions.

Eight hundred feet of sewer was laid to a depth ranging from 10 1/2 feet at the eastern end to 14 feet at the connecting point with the trunk line. Laterals were extended to the property lines. Legislation for the improvement was passed by council last year.

About 25 to 50 men have been employed on the job, for which they received orders for groceries or a ton of fuel for each day employed.

Equipment and cribbing used in the project is being stored in the No. 2 fire station with the evident intention of use in connection with the Ohio avenue, St. George and Railroad street sanitary sewer job. It is indicated the latter improvement will be started in about one month.

According to an understanding between the service-safety department and council, welfare labor will be used to dig the sewer five or six feet deep and then it is to be completed by contract owing to the hazards involved by using inexperienced men. It is estimated the sewer will have to be lowered to 17 feet at some points.

The project is being advertised and with enactment of the determining ordinance by council city officials will be prepared to proceed with the work.

Poor Man Talks

(Here is Will Rogers' promised interview with a poor man to learn what ordinary folks think about things in general.)

BEVERLY HILLS, Jan. 5.—Hello mister, was you ever asked to make a New Year's prediction?

"Say, I never been asked to eat on New Year's."

Have you ever been appointed on a commission?

"No, nor in jail either."

Do you read prominent men's predictions?

"No, I never read fiction."

Have you a job?

"No, I am on a diet."

What does the New Year hold in store for you?

"What New Year? Have they got another one?"

Do you think the world leaders can get us out of this?

"They might, ignorance got us in."

What do you think of Technocracy?

"Nothing you can't spell will ever work."

What about the debts?

"Well, I hear England paid $90,000,000, but it only is hearsay as far as the unemployment is concerned."

Do you think we will get out of this depression just because we got out of all the others?

"Lots of folks drown that's been in the water before."

What will give the unemployed employment?

"If somebody will throw a monkey wrench into the machinery."

Won't light wines and beer be a big aid to the poor?

"They will if they give 'em away."

Won't '33 see a change for the better?

"I don't think so, we have not suffered enough, the Lord is repaying us for our foolishness during prosperous days. He is not quite ready to let us out of the dog house yet."

I will haul you down the road if you like.

"What's down the road? I been to both ends. One place is as good as another."

Well, good luck to you.

"Yes, that's what my congressman said."

Yours,

Will Rogers

TOOLS CONFISCATED.

By The Associated Press. DETROIT—In his first day at his new job, Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox decided to look over the cells of the county jail.

A few minutes later he came out bearing one hacksaw blade, two pairs of scissors, a pair of pliers, and three large screwdrivers.

"These," he said, waving the objects aloft, "are not things that belong in cells."

FIREMEN GET MOTOR BOAT

Midland Volunteers Equipped to Drag River.

Fire Chief Edward J. Barrett announced today that Midland's volunteer department is now completely equipped to recover bodies from rivers and creeks with the purchase of an out-board motorboat by Joseph Michaels of Industry, and made available by him to the Midland fire fighters.

Michaels and Barrett previously had gathered together 21 sets of hooks and tongs for use in dragging for bodies of drowned persons. With the addition of the boat, Chief Barrett said that the Midland department is now the most completely equipped for this work between Pittsburgh and Steubenville.

The tongs and hooks, some of which have already aided in the recovery of drowned persons, are kept both at Michaels' blacksmith shop in Industry and at Barrett's home in Midland, in addition to a recently constructed water-glass and underwater electric search light.

The water-glass, equipped with a 17-foot tube and lens, to which extra lengths of pipe may be attached, will enable the men to look for bodies to a depth of 12 feet. Beyond that depth the electric light, which is lowered by means of rods, will be used to illuminate the bed of the stream.

There is also a rubber-tired trailer outfit, on which the motorboat will be mounted. With all their equipment in the boat, the trailer will be attached to an automobile and hauled to the scene of the drowning when an emergency call is received.

The hooks used in dragging, which are made by Michaels at his shop are said to be the only type of their kind along the river. Long bars of iron are strung with hooks, ranging in size from six to 18 inches, which they drag along the bottom of the stream. One set of hooks is equipped with large arms extending above the bar that will retain any object loosened by the smaller tongs at the bottom.

ARREST NO BAR TO POLICE JOB

Majority of Chicago Applicants Have Been Arrested Sometime Commission Chief Reports.

By The Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—An arrest or two is no blemish on one's record when applying for a policeman's job, Richard J. Collins, president of the city civil service commission, said.

If it was, he added, it would be difficult to find candidates for police jobs, for he said he has found that most Chicagoans have been arrested. Speeding and disorderly conduct are the common charges, the latter usually meaning "speakeasy fights," he explained.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. See at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

CERAMIC

The Tobacco Crop may be Short this Year—but that can't affect Chesterfield—why?

Production of tobaccos usable for cigarettes or "roll your own."
U. S. crop (average, 5 years, 1927-31)	1,091,265,750 lbs.
U. S. crop (Govt. estimate, 1932)	751,601,000 lbs.
Estimated shortage, 1932 crop	339,664,750 lbs.

The manufacturer of good cigarettes does not depend on any one year's crop. He knows that to keep up the quality of his brand, he has to carry on hand at all times a large stock of the right kinds of tobacco from several years' crops.

The domestic tobaccos are kept in large hogheads, each containing about 1000 pounds, and are allowed to age for two full years—in other words, nature's method of curing the tobaccos. Something like aging wine.

Liggett & Myers has about four and a half miles of warehouses used for storing leaf tobacco, to make sure that its products are uniform and are as good as can be made.

To do this requires a great deal of money—for example, there is invested in the domestic and Turkish tobaccos for Chesterfield Cigarettes over $75,000,000.

Smokers can be assured, regardless of the crop conditions, that Chesterfield will be absolutely uniform—the same yesterday, today, at all times. The cigarette that's milder—the cigarette that tastes better!
